A. C. Sports—Notes and Gossip.

The complete batting and fielding records of the clubs and players in the American Association for the season just finished are here given in detail. The St. Louis team leads the batting with a clean lead over all competitors. The Cincinnati and St. Louis are tied for first place in club fielding. O'Neil of St. Louis leads in individual batting with a percentage of nearly 500. He has scored more runs than any of his competitors. Latham of St. Louis ranks second in runs scored. Browning of Louisville has made more base hits than any other player, but is 34 points behind O'Neil in percentage. The figures follow:

Notes on the Averages.

The leading batter in the league, Maul, has an average of only .457. The leading batter's average last year was only .370. The great increase this year is due to bases on balls counting as hits.

Notes on the Averages.

How the heavy hitters outside of the Browns have fallen away. Orr No. 12, the great Stovey, the only hitter No. 1 last year, is No. 27. Little Nicol, formerly of the Browns, seems to have greatly improved in batting by having to face the Browns' pitchers.

Notes of the Game.

Both catches were off. Robinson played a great game at second. In spite of striking out twice yesterday, Bennett made two hits.

Notes of the Game.

For the first time in four games the Browns' errors were fewer than the Detroit's. Welch did some more heavy and timely batting. His two-bagger in the sixth brought in two runs.

Notes of the Game.

Bill Glessan had another "off" day yesterday. If brother Bill isn't careful he will find that he knows he will be off every day. The Browns got there on Bennett yesterday. Maybe the fact that the Browns were not supposed to get the credit of the score second and third in the first inning.

Notes of the Game.

O'Neil was the great hero. He drove in three of the five runs in the first inning with Latham and Glessan on bases. O'Neil was cleared as he took the first base. He did not, as he landed a corking hit over second. In the seventh his long fly to right field scored Latham.

Notes of the Game.

O'Neil's reputation cost him an out in the ninth inning. He batted a hot one to Dunlap, and was so disgusted at the champion doing something hitting that he trotted toward first. The Browns took the lead in the ninth, but the ball beat him there. He could have saved his skin if he had run.

Notes of the Game.

The betting at the local pool rooms to-day was 10 to 1 in favor of the Browns winning to-day's game. Latham, Thompson and O'Neil were the favorites for the greatest number of hits.

Notes of the Game.

At Chicago—Cincinnati, 10; Chicago, 6. At Philadelphia—Athletics, 11; Phillies, 6. At Baltimore—Orioles, 7; Browns, 4. At Cleveland—Cleveland, 9; Indians, 5.

Notes of the Game.

A Pittsburg Paper Grossly Slanders the Browns' Short-Stop. The Pittsburg Dispatch, in its account of Thursday's game, in which the Browns were struck out, 8 to nothing, makes some hard cracks at the Browns' short-stop. The idea of calling Glessan Mud-Turtle Bill is simply appalling. The Dispatch says: If his Excellency Christopher Von der Ahn's St. Louis Browns had been paid large salaries for their services, they would not have been so easily struck out.

Notes of the Game.

Glessan especially, who cracks himself up as being the "big" short-stop, and is a washed-up man. The club gets into a number of errors that have been seen on the local grounds. It seemed to the writer that Glessan had stopped an aged and decrepit pitcher. Outside of the errors, the Browns' American Association champions, Baldwin proved a puzzle for them. They could not connect with his delivery, worth a cent.

The Society of Ethical Culture will resume its Sunday morning series of winter lectures to-morrow. Mr. W. L. Sheldon will address the audience at Memorial Hall, Lucas place corner of Third and Olive. The subject is "The Ethics of the Future." The lecture will be held at 10:30 a.m.

Notes of the Game.

Wanted a record for the great Browns! Three bases on called balls gave them the credit of three hits. The farthest from getting was concerned the phantom of them but little good, as the St. Louis man who got so far as third base, was counted on by the pitcher and a third man. The man who was in the field was miserable, while Baldwin was backed up by the Detroit boys in the most perfect manner. In fact, it was an impossibility for the Browns to hit a ball past any of them, try how they would.

Notes of the Game.

Yesterday Von der Ahn shed Jimmy Holliday, a former St. Louis boy, but now in the Topekas. He is a good fielder and a hard hitter. Last year he played with St. Joe under the name of Hall.

Notes of the Game.

Horace Phillips was re-elected manager of the Pittsburg Club at the annual meeting yesterday. The club delegates to the meeting of the league were instructed to vote for the present system for all league clubs and not for the champion clubs only.

Notes of the Game.

Pfeiffer and Anson are still at daggers drawn. They do not speak to one another, and their presence in the same team is extremely distasteful to both. (Latham's correspondence.) Not a word from Anson about the little thing like that. He and Gore do not speak for years. Anson did not advise Gore to release until he had his option on him.

The cough kept increasing and the medicine I took seemed to do me but little good. At this time it did not alarm me much, but I was worried a little because I did not get cured by my breathing, because difficult and my cough and spitting more troublesome. My pulse seemed lengthened and food did not have the proper taste. I had a peculiar feeling of fullness in my chest. I first

A COMING BOMBHELL.

The Great Sensation Robert Garrett Promises the Public.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
BALTIMORE, October 15.—Railroad circles were perturbed yesterday by rumors of a coming bombshell. It was impossible to get any official information, but according to the winged reports the statement that Robert Garrett is now about to prepare will be the greatest sensation of the year. It is all about the sale of the telegraph to Jay Gould. Mr. Garrett's opposition to that sale is well known. It is now reported that the result was reached by means that were crooked to say the least. In other words, that Mr. Garrett was not only disowned when he heard of the sale, but that his disavowal was intended to keep the public in the dark as to the real facts of the case, which he had sent while the deal was being done. The negotiations were concluded in a quiet way, and the result was a sale of the telegraph to Jay Gould. No one knew anything positive about the rumors, but they were so general that they gained considerable credence. Vice-President Spencer knew nothing of them. He did state, however, that the telegraph would be sold to Jay Gould. The Baltimore & Ohio Company was expected to negotiate for the benefit of the company. If the Drexel-Morgan syndicate and the managers of the Baltimore & Ohio Company desire to restore confidence, they must make a full statement of the facts of the case, and not attempt to keep the public in the dark. It is best to know the worst and not to leave to conjecture the condition of the finances of the company, which in the absence of information, may be considered in a worse light than it really is. It is generally conceded that as the indication to pay a dividend was so great, the determination to do so was made long ago. It is generally conceded that the Drexel-Morgan syndicate is willing to guarantee the negotiation of the Baltimore & Ohio mortgage bonds, and that the syndicate is sufficient evidence that all of the direct and indirect interests of the Baltimore & Ohio Company are unquestionably sound in principal and interest, but some fears are entertained as to what may be the result of such unadvised securities which have been deposited upon the Baltimore & Ohio Company. The necessary funds to pay interest have not been earned or where the corporations are indebted to the Baltimore & Ohio Company, for this reason there was some disposition to pay the interest on the Baltimore & Ohio mortgage and income bonds.

AN EARLY STATEMENT DEMANDED.

"When the financial management of the Baltimore & Ohio Company was taken over by the Drexel-Morgan syndicate, it was admitted that a large floating debt then existed, but to what amount has never been officially stated. It was supposed, however, that the sale of the telegraph would yield an amount which would go far toward liquidating the pressing debt of the company. These assets have been realized on, but we still hear of the $10,000,000 ($10,000,000) and $3,000,000 preferred stock of the Baltimore & Ohio Company. It is expected to negotiate for the benefit of the company. If the Drexel-Morgan syndicate and the managers of the Baltimore & Ohio Company desire to restore confidence, they must make a full statement of the facts of the case, and not attempt to keep the public in the dark. It is best to know the worst and not to leave to conjecture the condition of the finances of the company, which in the absence of information, may be considered in a worse light than it really is. SYMPATHY FOR "REDS."

THE ANARCHIST MEETING HELD AT FINCHBURY LAST NIGHT.

Fervid Speeches by Sympathizers of the Chicago Anarchists.—The Speakers' Display a Lack of Knowledge of American Affairs.—Mrs. Besant's Address.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, October 15.—The long heralded mass-meeting to protest against the monstrous judicial assassination of the Chicago anarchists, which was held last evening at Finchbury. The meeting was composed of some thousand men and women, representing all shades of radical opinion, bent on teaching the people of Chicago the difference between anarchy and license, and saving the fair fame of the Lake City from the blench of a septic murder. Those present were better behaved and far more womanlike in appearance than the assemblies of the so-called Anarchists, which we are accustomed to see in New York and Chicago. Much startling ignorance prevailed among the speakers as to the matter under discussion, and several located the Haymarket riot in Cheyenne. A comrade just arrived from Chicago made some startling disclosures, which, however, carried little weight with the few Americans present, because he pronounced the name of the Commonwealth of Illinois like a Frenchman, and on the spur of the moment could only remember the name of one of its imprisoned comrades, although, as he claimed, he was on terms of the closest intimacy with all of them. He, moreover, assured the audience that they were as superior, each and every one of them, to George Washington, and that when Americans make such a fuss, as good old English he is to vent.

THE PORT MORRIS.
William Morris, who used to be an authority on duodes and wall-papers, but who of late has gone into anarchy and who has become the poet of the proletariat, set the ball rolling by assuring his hearers that the role accorded to the Anarchists was simply a very bad joke. The capitalists of Chicago were partly angry, partly afraid, and had determined to kill the men who spoke their minds. He had held many a brief before for his downtrodden brethren, but never such a good one as that he possessed for the cause he was now pleading. While not quite certain as to whether the social revolution in general, and the release of the Chicago Anarchists in particular, could be brought about peacefully, he, for one, wanted to bring about as peacefully as possible.

THE CHINESE STRIKE.
The Chinese strike in the U. S. and made a speech, apparently for the edification of his Russian comrades. But as every now and then he apologized for his bad English, it gradually dawned on the audience that he was not talking Russian, but very bad English. He claimed that the condemned men from the standpoint of justice were innocent. But, alas! that Russia and America had not been bracketed together, never been officially stated. It was supposed, however, that the sale of the telegraph would yield an amount which would go far toward liquidating the pressing debt of the company. These assets have been realized on, but we still hear of the $10,000,000 ($10,000,000) and $3,000,000 preferred stock of the Baltimore & Ohio Company. It is expected to negotiate for the benefit of the company. If the Drexel-Morgan syndicate and the managers of the Baltimore & Ohio Company desire to restore confidence, they must make a full statement of the facts of the case, and not attempt to keep the public in the dark. It is best to know the worst and not to leave to conjecture the condition of the finances of the company, which in the absence of information, may be considered in a worse light than it really is. It is generally conceded that as the indication to pay a dividend was so great, the determination to do so was made long ago. It is generally conceded that the Drexel-Morgan syndicate is willing to guarantee the negotiation of the Baltimore & Ohio mortgage bonds, and that the syndicate is sufficient evidence that all of the direct and indirect interests of the Baltimore & Ohio Company are unquestionably sound in principal and interest, but some fears are entertained as to what may be the result of such unadvised securities which have been deposited upon the Baltimore & Ohio Company. The necessary funds to pay interest have not been earned or where the corporations are indebted to the Baltimore & Ohio Company, for this reason there was some disposition to pay the interest on the Baltimore & Ohio mortgage and income bonds."

"In interfering in American affairs," he concluded, "we are but following the good example of the Americans as to Ireland."

THE AUDIENCE WAS TRULY BRITISH, and when Prince Peter Kraptovitch was announced, the reception accorded him was of the most enthusiastic description. This was due partly, perhaps, to his princely rank, but chiefly, I believe, to the circumstance that he looked weak, ailing and evidently much broken by the many imprisonments which he had undergone. It was really wonderful the amount of misinformation regarding American matters which the Prince displayed. He declared, for instance, that our "glorious Constitution" provided that Americans should only work eight hours a day, but the law has been rendered null and void," he said, "through the machinations of wicked men." In a touching manner he contrasted the action of the American Judiciary in the case of the Chicago Anarchists with that of Jacob Sharpe, "a man who spit blood like water before he built his railroad against the wishes of the people, and who, surrounded by a pretorian guard of mercenary myrmidons, was living like a fighting cock in the best New York hotel, setting the law of the land at defiance." He then delivered himself of some insidious information regarding the number of paid bondsmen of the Chicago Chicago capitalists—that is, McCormick and his gang—and finally concluded by asserting that the bomb thrown during the Haymarket riot was "heaven-sent and saved several hundred lives from the cause because it was so well timed."

MRS. ANNE BESANT

next favored the audience. She is dark and comely, and possessed of a fine figure. She has a faculty for saying new things, and does not seem to mind if they are untrue. She won the loudest applause of the evening from the audience, by informing them that the only evidence found admissible by the Chicago Judges consisted of the statements of the Chicago police who arrested the rioters, and concluded by illustrating the gross unfairness of the capitalist press, in stating that the London Daily Telegraph, on the day following the riot, reported that two bombs were thrown, whereas only one had been used.

Several other sages of Socialism and apostles of Anarchy who had come in from their suburban residences, then followed in short speeches of about an hour each, after which a series of resolutions were put and unanimously carried.

THE MARQUIS DE MORAES.

The Story of Trouble With His Wife Proves False.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, October 15.—A story was printed in a Western newspaper a few weeks ago to the effect that the wife of Antonio de Vallombrosa, Marquis de Moraes, had begun proceedings for a divorce. The Marquis was at that time in the Big Horn country looking for game. He is widely known throughout the West and it did not take long for the story to reach him. His attorney, Louis A. Chandler of the firm of Dill, Chandler & Seymour of this city, was with the Marquis at the time and he went to the newspaper office to contradict the rumor. Mr. Chandler hurried on to this city to find if any suits had really been begun against his client.

"The first thing I found on arriving here," said Mr. Chandler yesterday, "was a small package addressed to the Marquis. It contained a pocketbook that had been stolen by his wife, with a card on which was written a tender and loving message. I kept the pocketbook until I was able to find the thief and return it to him. I have since learned that the Marquis was really no truth in the divorce story."

The card was one of Mme. de Moraes' visiting cards. Underneath her name were a few lines in ink, simply expressing a hope that the Marquis was enjoying himself and that he would soon return home. The Marquis, who is a man of about 35 years of age, is six feet tall, with a full black beard. He married Mme. de Moraes, the daughter of Baron von Hoffmann. They had two children. It is claimed by the Marquis' friends that he first came to this country with the intention of entering his father-in-law's banking house here and learning something about business.

A Canadian Fisherman Going to the Alaskan Sealing Fisheries.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
HALIFAX, N. S., October 15.—Great interest attaches to the approaching departure from this port of the schooner Houlette for the Alaskan seal fisheries. The Houlette, a 100-ton vessel, was built in this city and has been employed as a Canadian fishery cruiser, and was the vessel that effected the capture of the Provincetown schooner, Highland Light, which was condemned for fishing inside the limit in Prince Edward Island waters. Capt. Grant, a Nova Scotian, who is intensely engaged in Alaskan seal fisheries from Victoria, British Columbia, is on his way to Halifax to purchase vessels to engage in the fishery.

He says there are eighteen British Columbia vessels sealing in Alaskan waters, and that each catch averages half a million dollars yearly. He declares in violent language that the United States Government in capturing Canadian vessels, and the alleged brutal treatment of Canadian fishermen taken prisoner, is a disgrace to the United States. He says, in nothing but retaliation for Canada's strict enforcement of the seal fishery in the Atlantic waters. But Capt. Grant says he will teach the Yankees a lesson if any attempt is made to capture the Houlette. He is armed with a small arms and ammunition, and is accompanied by the Houlette's crew, which is made up of picked men from among the raw-boned Highlanders of Cape Breton. Duncan McDonald, who is the captain of the Houlette, is a dare-devil fellow, who served with distinction in the last Sudan campaign, and will lead the crew.

Capt. Grant says he is going out to take seals on the Houlette, and if any American cutter attempts to interfere with him or his crew, he will not hesitate to use force. He is fully justified in resisting by force of arms any interference with his crew or with the Houlette on the high seas. He says that all hazards, the consequences take care of themselves. He says that he has already led a wild life, sailing the South Pacific and the Chinese seas. He commanded the ship Louisa, which was captured by the British and burned by the Alabamas and the crew of the ship Louisa were taken to the United States and put ashore and left by Capt. Seimmes upon an island near the Equator.

Dennis Kearney's Anti-Chinese Crusade in the West.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, October 15.—Dennis Kearney, the California anti-Chinese agitator, who is the guest of George Blair at 292 Canal street, receded a reporter yesterday afternoon.

He is going to talk to the workingmen and women of New York City Tuesday evening at Cooper Union," he said. "I am going to tell them something they never heard before. I am going to show the Chinese question in all its nakedness and ask them to choose between the supporters of the chop-lick and the supporters of the white man. I am going to show the Chinese question in all its nakedness and ask them to choose between the supporters of the chop-lick and the supporters of the white man.
